Tass Accuses the C.I.A. Of Terrorism in Europe

MOSCOW, Feb. 9 (AP) — The Soviet Union said today that the American Central Intelligence Agency was reputedly involved in terrorism in Italy, Spain, Greece and Portugal.

"If one turns to facts, he will easily discover where, in fact, the control center of international terrorism is and where the traces of the criminals really lead," the press agency Tass said in a commentary called "Traces Lead to Langley." C.I.A. headquarters are in Langley, Va.

The commentary by Vladimir Serov was part of a continuing press campaign in response to the contention of Secretary of State Alexander M. Haig Jr. that the Soviet Union supports international terrorism.

Tass gave no details of the alleged C.I.A. role in the incidents it mentioned and said public statements allegedly made in the West were the basis of its charges.
